Good Practices

- Incorporating Ghanaian issues and cases into training activities to improve understanding.
- Engaging a wide range of stakeholders to generate dialogue on forced labor indicators.
- Aligning project activities with stakeholder protocols, tasks, and activities to improve acceptance.
- Circulation of a newsletter and project updates.

Challenges

- Stakeholder familiarity with the project: The MTE reported that a quarter of stakeholders interviewed expressed limited knowledge about the project’s purpose and progress.
- Limited resources: The evaluation found that 22 percent of interview respondents noted the need for resources for forced labor monitoring and prevention.

Key Recommendations

- Improve communication about the project among stakeholders.
- Enhance engagement with Technical Working Group members between meetings.
- Increase engagement with political actors.
- Formalize a post-training follow-up strategy for supporting training participants.
- Improve capacity building activities for private sector actors.
- Continue to emphasize capacity building as the core objective of the project.

The full midterm evaluation report and additional resources are available on the FLIP webpage.